Provide Day Habilitation and School Age Services for the Bronx Autism Community*

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Michael P. Huseby, executive chairman of Barnes & Noble Education, cuts the ribbon at the Quality Services for the Autism Community's new Michael P. Huseby Autism Center in the Bronx. He is joined by Quality Services for the Autism Community (QSAC) and Bronx city officials, including QSAC CEO Gary A. Maffei, and Bronx Borough President Ruben Diaz Jr, and New York City Council Member Jimmy Vacca. The new center will provide expanded services and facilities to the Bronx community through a Day Habilitation Program for adults with autism and a school for students with autism, set to open in September 2016. Nearly 200 children and adults with autism will be supported by the new Huseby Center.
