

Donaldson Expands Global Distribution Capacity
Investment in Additional Space and New Technology Demonstrates Commitment to Customer Service

MINNEAPOLIS, MN – February 21 – Donaldson Company (NYSE:DCI), a leading, worldwide manufacturer of filtration systems and parts, announces the opening of four distribution centers.

Discussions with Donaldson's customers identified the need for additional product distribution abilities. As a result, new distribution capacity was added in Belgium, Indiana, South Africa, and Mexico.

The new 230,000 square foot facility in Brugge, Belgium is enhanced by state of the art systems that allow for lean distribution services. Donaldson began shipping out of the Belgian center in November.

The expanded Rensselaer, Indiana facility is Donaldson's largest U.S. distribution center. The Indiana location has been expanded by 50% to 600,000 square feet, which will address the growing demand for replacement parts from U.S. and Canadian customers.

Donaldson's new Johannesburg, South Africa facility opened in September. This 90,000 square foot facility was built to support customers in South Africa, as well as, sub-Saharan Africa.

A new 72,000 square foot distribution center opened in Aguascalientes, Mexico in November. This facility will support customers in Mexico and Latin America.

"These new and expanded distribution centers represent major investments for our future and are critical to our continued success of supporting our global customers locally," said Bill Cook, Chairman, President, and CEO of Donaldson. "We are confident that our customers will benefit from these investments and our ongoing commitment to providing value-added filtration products."
