Foo Fighters and Rage Against the Machine were both set to headline the 2020 edition of Boston Calling before the festival was cancelled due to the pandemic. After celebrating their 25th anniversary last year and releasing their 10th studio album in February, multi-GRAMMY Award winners, Foo Fighters, will take to the Boston Calling stage in 2022 with their electric live show. Meanwhile, Rage Against the Machine will be reuniting for their highly anticipated first tour in over ten years with Boston Calling being the band's only New England show on their 2022 North American tour.

"We couldn't be happier to return in 2022 and deliver a full-scale festival with two of the world's most celebrated rock bands as our headliners. We've spent the past year working on a festival that our fans can really look forward to, and we're so excited to share more news and surprises as we get into next year," said Boston Calling Events, LLC (BCE), co-founder and chief executive officer Brian Appel.

A limited number of early bird 3-Day General Admission tickets ($299.99), 3-Day VIP tickets ($799.99), and 3-Day Platinum tickets ($1,599.99) are on sale now at www.bostoncalling.com. A special limited 2-pack of early bird 3-Day GA tickets ($549.99) is also available. This early bird period will offer the lowest pricing for 3-Day tickets for Boston Calling 2022.

Fans can also expect newly enhanced viewing areas within the VIP and Platinum sections, including a new double-decker VIP experience offering dramatic views of both the Red Stage and Green Stage, and an expanded viewing deck within the Platinum section where food prepared by some of Boston's best chefs will be served throughout each day.
